Risk Matrix: The risk matrix multiplies the likelihood score by the impact score to determine an overall risk score. The risk rating will fall into one of three categories – low acceptable), medium (manageable) or high (unacceptable).

Likelihood

1. extremely unlikely; rare occurrence
2. unlikely
3. moderately unlikely
4. very likely, regular occurrence
5. extremely likely; frequent occurrence

Impact (financial/reputational)

1. not critical to continued operations
2. minor impact in limited areas
3. minor impact in many areas
4. significant impact; would not affect continued operations in short term but might in medium to long term; or relates to substantial operational areas
5. fundamental to continuing operations

Risk acceptability table

This table is used to decide whether a risk is acceptable, based on its overall risk score, and to inform the decision on any actions to be taken.

| Acceptability level    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Acceptable(low)    | Exposure to this risk is acceptable, but the risk should be subject to periodic review to ensure it does not increase and the effectiveness of current control methods remains stable.                                                                                  |
| Manageable(medium) | Exposure to the risk is only acceptable following an investigation to identify opportunities to reduce the risk and implement additional control measures. The risk should be subject to regular review to ensure the control methods remain effective.                 |
| Unacceptable(high) | Immediately consider whether the activity associated with the risk should cease. Any decision to continue exposure to this level of risk should be made by leadership, and be subject to the development of detailed actions, on-going oversight and high-level review. |
